

Florida: nonprofits that lost tax-exempt status for missed filings, 2021 to 2025

Each year from 2021 to 2025, 42.9 of every 1,000 Florida organizations that must file an annual return lost federal tax-exempt status for missing three returns in a row. That's the 5th highest rate of the 50 states and DC. The national rate was 34.4.

19,820

lost status from 2021 to 2025, about 3,964 a year. 3rd most by count.

17,292

of them were 501(c)(3) charities, 87% of the total.

4,070

lost status in 2025, or 44.0 per 1,000.

92,435

Florida organizations must file an annual return. 63% of them file the Form 990-N e-Postcard.

Florida against the country

Organizations that lost tax-exempt status for every 1,000 required to file, per year, 2021 to 2025.

Many organizations on the list had already closed and never told the IRS, so a name on the list doesn't mean anyone did something wrong.

What a nonprofit in Florida can do

- File every year, even a quiet one. Groups whose gross receipts are normally $50,000 or less file the Form 990-N e-Postcard online. It's due May 15 if your year ends December 31.
- File late rather than not at all. A late return still counts if it reaches the IRS before the third missed due date.
- Check where you stand. The IRS Tax Exempt Organization Search (apps.irs.gov/app/eos) shows whether an organization lost its status. If it did, there's a way back, starting with a new application.
